Three Popular Superstitions.

THE WANDERING JEW, PRESTER JOHN AND ANTICHRIST.

From Chambers' Journal.

Over all the middle ages we see the wierd figure of a man, downcast and grave, who, unbasting, unresting, must march on to the day of doom. The Wandering Jew, sometimes buried in Armenian convents or the deserts of Central Asia, in the burning plains of Africa, or the snowy heights of the Caucasus, suddenly appears in the haunts of more civilized Europe, and tells, as an eye witness, the sad story of the crucifixion, and his share in the contumely cast upon the God man. He had thrown himself into the flaming city of Jerusalem under the Roman swords; he had fought against Gauls, Germans and Saracens; but no lance would enter his charmed body—no arrow pierce the heart that longed to be at rest. The wild elephant had crushed him under foot, venomous serpents had bitten him, the hungry lion had torn him, but he could not die until Christ himself should return to judge the world. This legend filled the people with terror and emotion, and probably arose from some eloquent preacher, who thus personified the Jewish nation, under the figure of a single man, scattered through the world, and undestroyed by persecution. Matthew Paris is the first historian who speaks of it; an Armenian bishop, visiting the monks of St. Albans, had conversed with the Jew about the year 1228, and from that time he appeared at intervals in several of the cities of Europe, dressed in the old Roman costume, much worn, a long beard, naked feet, and a sad, melancholy expression. He refused all presents but a few pence, which he gave away to the poor. At Strasbourg he appeared in 1580, and informed the magistrates that he had passed through their city two hundred years before, which was verified by a reference to the city registers. The last time we hear of him is in the city of Brussels in 1774.

Another no less popular superstition was the existence of a king and pontiff, united in one, named Preston John, who had ruled a vast empire for centuries, in which more marvels were to be found than in Mohammed's paradise. No traveler in the east dared put a stop to his absurd belief; some even pretended to know the place. The kings of Portugal sent several expeditions into India and Abyssinia to assure themselves of the reality, for this immortal pope gave many an hour's anxiety to the popes of the west, for fear lest schism should spring from some distant quarter. There was a curious letter, written perhaps by some partisan of the Reformation, to the Emperor of Rome and King of France, in the name of Prester John, about 1507, inviting them to settle in his dominions, which he described as the richest and finest of the world. There they would see the fabled phœnix, the griffin, the roc, the seven horned bull, centaurs, pigmies, and dragons. There sprung the fountain of eternal youth, there grew the Tree of Life, from which was drawn the holy oil used for the sacraments of the church; and when the king and his court sat down to table they needed no cooks, for a spiritual chef prepared all their dishes.

Another mystical being was Antichrist, who was supposed to be born in Babylon, and whom the Jews were ready to recognise as their Messiah. The year 1000 was fixed upon by the most learned doctors as the time of his appearance, and the end of the world. We have a terrible picture given by a contemporary of the desolation which reigned throughout Europe at the approach of this fatal term; there were fearful signs in the heavens and on the earth—eclipses, comets, meteors, floods, tempests and plagues. Superstition aggravated the real evils of public misery; the people spoke of frightful miracles; the dead were raised; the living struck with sudden death; spectres and demons came from the abyss. Men thought of nothing but how they should appear before God: they gave up their wealth to churches and convents; they thought it useless to till the ground and occupy themselves in their daily tasks; their fields, houses and shops were deserted for the altar. At length, the last day of the year 999 arrived; the whole populace, in tears and prayers, crowded the churches, and waited in trembling expectation the soundings of the seven trumpets, and the appearance of Antichrist; but the sun rose bright as ever, the stars fell not from heaven, the laws of nature were uninterrupted. 'It was only postponed,' said the credulous; they counted the days, weeks and months with indescribable anxiety, and it required many years of anguish to restore calmness to their minds.

Photographing the Baby.

BY BABY'S MAMMA.

If you imagine that a Lilliputian task, all I can say is just undertake it once. Not that he was the least bit cross, or I should have given up in despair. Our failure was mainly owing to his excessive good nature, for just at the critical moment, when we flattered ourselves that he was in perfect trim for an impression, the corner of his mouth would fly around toward his ears in a manner irresistably charming to meet with in real life, but quite startling in its effect when brought out in print. All I feared when I took him down was his timidity. I thought perhaps the strange faces and places combined would frighten him, but he maintained the most perfect self-possession until the screens were rolled into place with that horrible schreeching sound. Strange noises are his greatest bug-bear, and his eyes immediately assumed a size and shape very suggestive of terror, and his lip was drawn up preparatory to a yell, when I nipped that kind intention in the bud by hastily resorted to that trite expedient of harassed mothers and nurses, viz: endeavoring to allure some heline myth on to the scene of action. the familiar call restored him to his senses, and after he had entirely gained his composure, we managed with considerable engineering to get him into the chair.

The view from the large side-light was charming. The bay spread out like a picture, dotted with big boats, and little boats, and sea gulls, and sparkles of sunshine quivering in and out among them all, and, to our great dismay, Baby seemed thoroughly to appreciate it. He is what might be called one of the "stiff-necked," and once having got his head around in that direction we found it impossible to move him by force. As it was necessary that he should face the camera, or have a profile view (which from his admirable but peculiar style of beauty is not in every way desirable) we concluded to try the effect of blandishments on his tender nature. One thing was certain: we must present to his view something full as attractive and more entertaining than that which was engrossing him. Our artist came to the rescue and proved himself to be the right man in the right place. Either a strikingly inventive genius or long practice had well fitted him for his role, and the ardor with which his cunningly devised and well executed maneuvres were brought to bear upon poor innocent Baby was something quite stirring to behold. One of the most picturesque was the whirling of a sizable green table cover in mid air, he being evidently as oblivious of the imminent peril in which he was placing his pictures, brackets, etc., as Baby was of the fact that any one was specially exercised on his account. Then our manager bethought himself of a rattle-box. which was hastily improvised from a soda-glass and a few broken plates. These jingled and had an effect, to be sure, but a very fleeting one. Baby scanned the contrivance a moment with eyes of solemn wonder, and then, breaking into a friendly smile, calmly resumed his study of the bay. Mr. Artist then resorted to gymnastics, going in on his muscle and toils, until both were nearly exhausted.

At length, the climax of these solemn performances was reached by his going through a bona fide Indian war dance, after the most approved fashion, clapping his hands frantically over his head to a vocal accompaniment, which gave the whole a stunning and fearful effect. Baby was all attention, enjoying the diversion amazingly, till Mr. Artist made a rush for the camera, fondly hoping to secure that expression, when Baby's observing eye caught sight of something behind him, and he immediately gave us another profile view; with the pleasing variety of offering the other side. The unfortunate object of his attention, this time, was a plush button on the back of his chair. For an instant he subjected it to the closest scrutiny, drawing off and viewing it with the eye of a connoisseur, and then, intent upon a more intimate acquaintance began a series of uncertain dives and lunges, not at all conducive to the accomplishment of our purpose, and apparently unsatisfactorily to himself, as he kept at it with an untiring assiduity. From that time on, we were obliged to take him in his brief moments of forgetfulness. The liveliest gyrations of our artist attracted but for an instant, then the corners of his mouth drawing round, he would vouchsafe a crow or two, and turn to recommence his patient picking at that button. So we had to give it up for that day. Out of six negatives only two would answer to print from. I saw the proofs to-day. One I would not look at; the other looks as if some one had just perpetrated a capital joke, to which he is attesting his hearty and uproarious appreciation. I don't object to keeping it for myself, but as it is mostly mouth, I should dislike circulating it among my friends; I must try again. I have no doubt I shall succeed in the end; it is only a matter of time and patience.

A Traveller's Experience in Texas.

HOTEL LIFE IN THE SOUTH.

A correspondent of the Houston Union writes from the interior of Texas:

"I arrived at Hempstead in a cold drizzling rain; the first object that caught my eye was a large frame building, with hotel blazed in glaring characters upon its imposing front. I at once directed my footsteps thither, and a few minutes found me in the bar-room of the Planters' Exchange—a great old-fashioned, loose-floored, tobacco-perfumed apartment, whose 'outfit,' to use a Westernism, consisted of two cow-hide chairs, a three legged stool, a rusty box stove, a roller-towel, a half a dozen raged maps, and a clay pipe, which long since had ceased to be pressed by vermillion lips, while clustered around the stove might be seen a motley group of rapidly decaying Southern gentility, who were engaged in lustily cursing the Yankee administration, and showering benedictions upon the State police; which, upon extended observation, I belief to be the most benign institution known to Texas—for nothing short of an organization of this character could ever rid the country of that lawless, reckless, desperado element which so long has infested this section, and given to Texas so unenviable a reputation.

Not being desirous of listening to the interesting bar-room galaxy, I requested an officious XVth amendment, who seemed to be running this colossal public shed, to show me to a room, which he did with all imaginable suaviter in modo. And such a room! A huge, bleak, blindless room, in the centre of which stood a superannuated and frail bedstead that doubtless had supported its snoring thousands—upon which I was doomed to repose for the night. The bed being considerably lower in the middle than at the sides your humble servant had crawled up on the right side of the bed. During the night the rain poured down, and unfortunately it happened that there was a defective spot in the roof just over the centre of the bed, through which the water trickled down until quite a pool had accumulated. About two o'clock in the morning, I had occasion to roll over in bed. Slap dash I went into the water! I searched in vain for my life preservers, but alas! for human fallibility, I had neglected them. And as I have no predilection for the Baptist denomination, neither any desire to join the navy, nor the slightest hankering after "Life on the ocean wave, and a home on the briny deep," I at once leaped frantically from my virtuous and watery couch, and rushing down stairs informed slumbering Sambo that I wanted a change of venue instanter. I was at once assigned another room, which looked as if it might protect me against the wind and waves; and on anything but a flowery bed of ease I impatiently awaited the coming of morning. This is but to me many of the ridiculous experiences that are daily falling to my lot, the object of the relation of which is to lift the curtain and give to the outer world a glimpse of Texas life as it is."

Fashionable Soul-saving

We often wonder, says a writer to the Richmond Whig, where the poor go to church. When our blessed Lord delivered that matchless address on the "Mount," we cannot conceive of the possibility of there being any charge. Those precious utterances—"Blessed are the poor in spirit;" "Blessed are the poor in heart;" "Blessed are the peace-makers"—flowed from those divine lips free as the bounteous air, lavish as the all-pervading light. And so we can imagine the proto-martyr Stephen proclaiming, not only before the Sanhedrim but to all people of Jerusalem, without money and without price, "Howbeit the Most High dwelleth not in temples made with hands." There would be something shocking to our ideas of the loftiness and elevation maintained by the early missionaries of the Cross to associate with their preaching such a thing as "reserved seats" or "a dress circle."

And yet we have these things in our modern churches. There are particular churches which are recognized as "fashionable." There is no need there to apprehend anything that will shock the most thoroughbred persons. People are expected to be well—if not elegantly—dressed. The latest bonnets—the most dazzling silks—select them as the fittest theatre for their exhibition. Of course these privileges have to be paid for. The "best people" are to be found in a certain portion of the church. People who have large families and small incomes—they sit in the gallery—or, most likely, stay at home. It is positively an expensive thing to hear the gospel in our towns.

It is a matter of some surprise to us that some of the more attractive city churches do not set the example of charging an admission fee—say a dollar a head. People who have money are, we take it, just as willing to spent it at church as at the theatre, for the same entertainment. It would at all events be a good idea to combine the two features of rented pews and the sale of tickets for single performances. Strangers (with money of course) often want to go to church, and do not wish to intrude into a private box—and such are perfectly willing to pay seventy-five cents or $1 to hear good music and see the elite of the city.

There is another recommendation we would make to the church, which is this: We would recommend to them to build a number of free churches in the plain quarters of every considerable town for the use of the masses of the people. There are plenty of people with souls to be saved who never have a chance under the present system. They have nowhere to sit, or if they have, have no fine clothes. They are not willing when they go to church to be reminded that they belong to the poor people. The church is no place for distinction of classes. It is a dead level.

Von Moltke's chair, at his hotel in Berlin, is kept crowned with a laurel wreath, and no one is allowed to sit in it.

Greeley on Grant.

The whole country knows that Mr. Greeley is no man-worshipper, nor has he ever been accused of being a mere tool of party. He has done as much as any other individual, and perhaps more than any other man towards the organization of the Republican party and its ascendency in the nation. No pen has imprinted the ideas, the sentiments, the principles that have united to form the dominant Republican sentiment of the country, with such clearness and force of impression and iteration as Mr. Greeley has done. And further, no man has higher claims, upon the party for high and honorable office under the Government. And yet Mr. Greeley is still a private citizen, and is not bound to the Administration by any official ties. He is not, then, to be suspected of any undue partiality to the Administration, but is free to speak his mind with perfect candor and absolute independence. And to-day as the mists of jealousy and personal disappointment are obscuring the vision of some of our Republican leaders, it is refreshing to see Greeley wipe them off his own glasses, and looking at the general policy and the general measures of the Administration, pronounce words of hearty approval and satisfaction. He can see in General Grant's official action nothing but purity, honesty, and patriotism; nothing to forfeit or impair the confidence of the country in his wise leadership. The words of Mr. Greeley in addressing the Republican organization in New York City the other day, express the sentiments he entertains of General Grant's Administration, and are supposed to foreshadow the convictions of the editor of the Tribune that no Republican in the country is better fitted to lead the Republican party in the Presidential contest of 1872, and to win a popular triumph, and to administer the Government with honor, ability and success than General Grant. We quote Mr. Greeley's own words:

"As to the Administration of General Grant, I recognize no one as a Republican who is not grateful for its judicious, energetic and successful efforts to procure the ratification of the XVth Amendment, that keystone of our political arch whereby the fruits of our great triumph over Rebellion and Slavery are assured and perpetuated That the President has made some mistakes in appointments is obvious—it would be strange indeed if one so inexperienced in the conduct of political affairs had wholly escaped them Whatever blame may justly attach to this falls rightfully on us, who took him from the head of the Army and made him our civil Chief Magistrate, fully aware that he had never voted a republican ticket if indeed he had voted at all. While asserting the right of every Republican to his untrammeled choice of a candidate for next President until a nomination is made, I venture to suggest that Gen. Grant will be far better qualified for that momentous trust in 1872 than he was in 1868.

Such, gentlemen, are the ideas and convictions which have impelled me to take my place among you and accept the responsibility you have imposed upon me. Let us take care to act with substantial unanimity and with such evident moderation and fairness that our friends throughout the State and the Union shall see and feel that we are doing our utmost to unite and strengthen the Republican party, and animate it with well-grounded and sanguine hopes of future triumphs.

San Domingo.

Those who have got the impression on their minds that the President is bent on annexing San Domingo to the United States, nolens volens, right or wrong, by foul means or fair, must acknowledge that he has chosen very surprising instruments or agents to effect his purpose. On the other hand, we are sure that the country will see in the selection made by General Grant of the Commissioners, a proof that his motives are honest, his conduct all open and above board, that he seeks to conceal nothing, and that he courts the fullest investigation and the judgment of the highest, most respected and trusted authorities in the land. We quote the Washington special of the Pittsburgh Commercial of the 12th inst.:

"The San Domingo Commission will leave on Monday. Ben. Wade is President, and Andrew White, President of Cornell University, is one of the members Bishop Simpson declined, and the acceptance of a third person in his place cannot be learned up to the present time. The intention of hurrying the investigation with a view of pressing the matter further before the present Congress appears to have been abandoned. Mr. Wade had no communication with the President upon the merits of the question previous to his appointment, and has not committed himself in any way. "Mr. Wade says the commission will take ample time to do the work committed to them, in a thorough manner. The appointment of Mr. White is considered by all parties as a fair and honorable selection.

"General Sigel has definitely accepted the position of Secretary of the Commission.

"The President to-day sent for Frederick Douglas and invited him to accompany the party as an independent observer. The probabilities are that he will accept."

And further:

"The President is understood to have already chosen the Commissioners, and it is understood to have signified their intention to accept, in case the resolutions passed. They are Benjamin F. Wade, Bishop Simpson and ex Congressman William E. Dodge, of New York. Mr. Wade and Mr. Dodge are already in the city, and Bishop Simpson is expected to-morrow. Full instructions will be at once prepared, and they will sail as soon as possible, probably on Monday next. It is understood they will be absent thirty or forty days. The Secretary of the Commission has not as yet been decided upon as far as known, but it now seems doubtful that Cadet Cushing will accompany the Commission."

And now, let the reader carefully read and ponder the text of the resolution for the Commission to San Domingo, adopted by Congress, and say in candor if there is anything improper or disingenuous about it.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States be authorized to appoint three Commissioners, and also a Secretary to the latter, who is to be versed in the English and Spanish languages, to proceed to the island of San Domingo, and to such other places, if any, as such Commissioners may deem necessary, and there inquire into and ascertain and report the political state and condition of the Republic of San Domingo, the probable number of inhabitants, and the desire and disposition of the people of the said Republic to become annexed, and to form a part of the people of the United States; the physical, mental, and moral condition of said people, and their general condition as to material wealth and industrial capacity; the resources of the country—its mineral and agricultural products, the product of its waters and forests, and the general character of the soil and the extent and proportion thereof capable of cultivation; the climate and health of the country; its bays, harbors and rivers; its meteorological character and existence and frequence of remarkable meteorological phenomena; the debt of the Government; its obligations, whether funded, and ascertained and admitted; or unadjusted and under discussion; treaties and engagements with other powers; the extent of boundary and territory, what proportion is covered by foreign claimants, or by grants, or concessions, and generally what concessions and franchises have been granted with the names of the respective grantees; the terms and conditions on which the Dominican Government may desire to annex to and become a part of the United States as one of the territories thereof, and such other information with respect to said Government or its territories as, to the said Commissioners shall be desirable or important with reference to the future incorporation of said Dominican Republic into the United States as one of its territories.

SEC. 2. And be it further resolved, That said Commissioners shall, as soon as conveniently may be, report to the President of the United States, who shall lay their report before Congress.

SEC. 3. And be it further resolved, That said Commissioners shall serve without compensation, except the payment of their expenses and the compensation of the Secretary, which shall be determined by the Secretary of State, with the approval of the President.

Provided, That nothing in this resolution contained shall be held, understood or construed as committing Congress to the policy of annexing the territory of said Republic of Dominica.

Increase of Ignorance.

It appears from the census statistics that ignorance is increasing rapidly in the United States, and this fact is used as an argument in favor of compulsory education. In 1840 the number of adult whites who could not read nor write amounted to 549,850, and the same class in 1850 had increased to 962,898, and in 1860 to 1,126,775. As the census returns for 1870 have not yet been completed, it is impossible to ascertain the exact number of illiterate persons at present in the United States; but it is estimated that, to the 1,126,775 illiterate white adults of 1860 must be added 91,736 colored illiterate adults and 1,655,800 adult freedmen so that the number of persons in this country who can neither read nor write must exceed 2,874 111, and be very nearly three millions. It is argued that republican institutions depend entirely for their support upon the intelligence of the masses and upon the strict performance of their public duties by the voters, and that the rights and liberties of the people have no sure protection when the poor and ignorant are controlled by corrupt and ambitious politicians. The education of the illiterate, it is therefore contended, is the only method to be adopted to secure the permanency of the United States.

What Manufacturers will do for a City.

In 1854-5 the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad propose to erect machine shops to manufacture cars and other road stock found necessary for its working. The company offered to build the shops wherever the citizens along the line would secure land for the buildings and side tracks. The city of Aurora, Ill, then a mere village, resolved to have the shops. The sum of three thousand seven hundred dollars was raised by subscription, the land was donated to and accepted by the company and the shops were built. The road was soon extended westward and the business of the company increased to such an extent as to make it absolutely necessary for them to secure more shop and track room. This required more land. Parties owning the land adjacent to the company's land demanded extravagant prices; consequently the company began to talk of removing their shops. All the old citizens recollect the result—a tremendous scare, public meetings, committee of conference, a compromise, and the purchase of more land. The town issued fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) in bonds to be paid in taxes—thus making the donations to the railroad company fifty-three thousand seven hundred dollars ($53,700)

A correspondent of the Aurora Herald reports the result of this investment as follows:

The railroad company have paid into the city and town treasuries one hundred and twenty-nine thousand one hundred and thirty-eight dollars and sixty-nine cents in taxes. This money has been spent, during the fifteen years, in making our public improvements—building our court house, our school houses, bridges, establishing our fire department, paying bounties to our soldiers, and all the other public improvements. During the month of November, which is a fair average month, the company employed thirteen hundred and fifty-one men at Aurora, to whom they paid seventy-four thousand, four hundred and seventy two dollars and seventy-four cents (74 472 74)

THE Cleveland Herald, in illustration of the large amount of work done over the railway telegraph lines, states that a train dispatcher and his assistants on the road from Cleveland to Toledo, during the last two weeks, transmitted to conductors of trains 9,951 orders, each order averaging twenty five words, and each word five letters, so that 173 775 words, composed of 868,875 letters, were sent over the wires and repeated back during fourteen days. The average time consumed in transmitting and repeating each order was two minutes, so that nine days and six hours were occupied in the continuous working of the lines. The saving of time to trains by sending these messages was four hours to freight trains, and forty minutes to passenger trains

Effect of the Bombardment.

LONDON, Jan. 13

A dispatch from Paris, dated the 9th and 10th, is received, confirming the destructive effect of the enemy's guns in the neighborhood of Luxemburg gardens. Destruction of buildings in that neighborhood were visible, and the suburbs have been entirely destroyed by the enemy's guns. The south-west suburban part of the city is in ruins, and seems hopelessly given up to the range of the Prussians' fire. The damage to buildings in the neighborhood of St. Jacques is great, and when the dispatch left, was proceeding. The general impression was that neither life nor property in this vicinity was safe. The battery at Clamart is doing the Prussians good service, and a report is already received that the accuracy of its fire was telling with great effect. It is confirmed that shells undoubtedly reach the Place de la Concorde.

The French maintained the most of their positions. The Prussians engaged are estimated at 180,000. The French loss is unknown, but is serious.

This check he had certified, and purchased a diamond pin worth $305, receiving the difference in cash.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.

The Senate held an executive session, yesterday, lasting over an hour, for consideration of the nomination of Admiral Porter. There was nothing new in the early part of the session, and the same old arguments against his confirmation were made by his opponents. Morton, Nye, and others advocated confirmation as an act of justice to a brave officer, holding that if the President could afford to nominate Porter, the Senate could afford to confirm him, and that personal consideration ought not to influence members toward it. Towards the close of the session the question was raised that if the Senate failed to confirm, Porter would be out of service, as he had been constitutionally appointed, and his previous commission as Vice Admiral had been vacated by the appointment of Rowan. This was a new view of the case and it was discussed by the best lawyers in the Senate.

Rowan has been nominated Vice Admiral, and if he should be confirmed to Porter's old position before the case of Porter should be acted upon, and Porter subsequently rejected, he could not get back to his former rank, which had been constitutionally allowed to Rowan, and he would thus be out of service. It is not unusual for the Senate to lay aside one nomination and take up another lower down on the calendar. This view of the case will operate in Porter's favor, as Senators are not disposed to legislate him out of office. Were it not for this question he would be rejected by a large vote. When the subject had been discussed for some time Porter's friends suggested adjournment, but this his opponents refused until a vote was taken, and his friends by a small majority carried their point. It is understood a vote will be taken to-day, and the opinion is general that he will be confirmed by a small majority.

Bishop Simpson, who was tendered a position on the commission to San Domingo, was forced to decline, on account of a suit in which he is interested, relating to the Methodist Book Concern. It is believed Hon William E Dodge has declined, and the third member of the commission is in doubt. It is said that it has been tendered Bishop Ames. Fred. Douglass was with the President for more than an hour yesterday, and rumor again couples his name with the commission. It is yet possible that Dodge may accept. It will be decided to-day.

The House Judiciary Committee this morning postponed further consideration of the McGarrahan case until Monday, and subpœnaed the following persons to give testimony at that time, viz: James Wilson, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Martin Bell, formerly Acting Recorder, Wm. Lowery, formerly clerk in the Land Office and now counsel for the New Idria Company.

The Senate Committee on Public Lands postponed action on the nomination of Mr. Drummond to be Commissioner of the Land Office, and agreed to report favorably on the name of Mr. Hardenburg as Surveyor General of California

A letter has been received from General Siegel withdrawing his acceptance of the appointment of Secretary to the Commissioners to Dominica on the ground, it is said, that he is not sufficiently versified in the Spanish language as required by the joint resolution. The third commissioner had not at noon to-day been appointed.

At the close of the executive session to-day the Vice President laid before the Senate the following message, which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed:

To the Senate of the United States:

In reply to the resolution of the Senate of the 16th of December, 1870, requesting to be furnished with information relative to the organization of disloyal persons in North Carolina, having in view resistance to United States laws, and denial of protection and enjoyment of rights and liberties secured under the United States, etc, I transmit herewith abstracts of reports and other papers on file in the War Department, relative to outrages in North Carolina, and also for the information of the Senate those relative to outrages in other southern States. The original reports and papers are too voluminous to be copied in season to be used by the present Congress, but are easily accessible for reference, and copies of such papers can be furnished as the Senate may deem necessary. [Signed] U S GRANT.

Executive Mansion, Jan. 13, 1871.

The Senate was in executive session for four hours this afternoon, on the nomination of Vice-Admiral Porter to be Admiral, and confirmed it by a vote of 30 to 10.

The Senate also confirmed the following nominations: Mortimer D. Leggett, of Ohio, Commissioner of Patents, and John H Knight, Register of the Land Office at Bayfield, Wisconsin.

New York News.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

Contrary to expectations, the frigate Tennessee was not ready yesterday to leave Brooklyn navy yard to proceed to anchorage off the Battery to take on board her powder In the afternoon an official board of officers inspected the frigate throughout and pronounced her in every way prepared and equipped for sea. It will require six or eight days for the Tennessee to sail from New York to Samana under favorable circumstances. The proposed visit to Hampton Roads is relinquished, as it is now contemplated that the ship will sail from this port with the San Domingo Commissioners Monday next, and will make straight for the Island. The Commissioners are expected from Washington Sunday morning, and will be on board by two o'clock in the afternoon. The ship will undoubtedly drop down to an anchorage off Ellis Island, to-day, to take her powder on board Yesterday the powder boat was unable to reach the island in consequence of the mass of ice surrounding it. Another effort will be made this forenoon with tugs, etc. A swarm of civilians are to accompany the commission in various capacities.

E S. Stokes is now out on bail, determined to vindicate himself against the charges of fraud preferred against him, and he has prepared affidavits to show that the whole affair is malicious on the part of Col Fisk, on account of Stokes' misconstrued friendship for Mrs. Mansfield Stokes asserts that a proposition was made to him last night to settle the case, but he refused, and announces his intention of giving his persecutors the full benefit of the law.

It will be some days, if not weeks, before water can again be supplied to Jersey City Yesterday machinery was put in place, by which it is intended to raise the massive iron pipe to its position on the pedestal, forty-five feet in height. The pipe weighs twenty-five tons, and is one hundred and twenty five feet long, and must be raised in a single piece. To-day it will be placed in position for hoisting, and to-morrow the work of raising it will begin. Those engaged in the work assert that it cannot be completed before the middle of next week.

A special from West Point says the proceedings of the court martial in cadet Smith's case have been sent to the authorities at Washington, and while reticence is the rule in regard to the probable verdict, it is fully evident that the general prognostication tends to either expulsion or suspension. Cadet Barnes, one of the victims of the recent first-class outrage, resigned his cadetship and made his final exit from here. Cadets Fleckinger and Baird are attending their class examinations, but they are excommunicated as effectually as their colored brother Smith from all communion and fellowship with their comrades. Their resignations have been forwarded to Washington. Friends have gone to intercede for them.

Arrived, steamer Abyssinia, from Liverpool.

The Board of Underwriters meeting to-day agreed to the necessity of urging such a course of action as will force Congress to realize that the American people wish their representatives to pass the Alabama claims bill, pending in the House, making individual losses to citizens in time of war a national matter.

Trial of Rev. Dr. Lanahan.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

The Book Concern of the M E Church, who are investigating the charges against Rev. Dr. Lanahan, met again this forenoon. The question of admitting reporters to the session was fully discussed and the motion was finally adopted to admit them. The following are the names of the members of the court present: Rev. Arens Brooks, D. D., St. Paul, Chairman; Rev J S Bingham, Brackin Conference; Rev. H Bannister, Wisconsin Conference; Rev Van Cleve, Newark Conference; Rev F. Blades, Detroit Conference; Rev. J. Pike, New Hampshire Conference; Rev. G. H. Woodruff, New York East Conference; Rev. H. Slicer, Baltimore Conference; Rev. J Irwin, Central New York Conference; Rev. S W Maltby, Erie Conference; Rev. J F Kennedy, Northern Ohio Conference; Rev J. Rothweller, Central German Conference; Rev. B. F Rawlins, Presiding Elder, Indianapolis District. Rev. J. H. Moore, of Illinois Conference was the only absent member.

The Court proceedings opened with a few remarks by the Chairman Mr. Brooks, who counseled the members to proceed with the investigation in a spirit of prayer, taking careful consideration of the charges against the defendant.

The following gentlemen are counsel for Rev. Dr. Lanahan: Judge Reynolds, Rev. Mr. Buckley, A. J. Vanderpool, Dr. Porter, Rev. Mr. Ward, of Balt'e, Colonel Wright and Mr. Elliot.

The prosecution was represented by E. L Foucheen and General Runyan as legal counsel and Dr Pease, presiding elder of New York East Conference, and Rev Geo. L Taylor, clerical counsel.

The following order of procedure was then adopted for the guidance of members of the Court: First, That gentleman making charges against Rev. Dr. Lanahan are requested to present testimony in the following order: Papers and specifications assigned and published Second, Any person testifying may call to his assistant any minister or layman to corroborate his evidence. Third, That Rev Dr. Lanahan be allowed to reply to such charges. Fourth, That Rev. Dr Lanahan be allowed the same privileges of calling upon ministers and laymen granted the prosecution Fifth, That witnesses introduced shall, when necessary, be cross-examined, also, that but one witness shall be allowed in the room at a time.

On motion the several charges and specifications made against Rev. Dr. Lanahan were then read. Dr. Lanahan's answer to the different charges and specifications was read by the counsel for defense. He says:

"I deny the allegation contained in specification 3, charges first, as they are therein set forth. It is true that after the appearance of the article in the New York Times I refused to unite in a denial of any fraud or corruption in the Book Concern; there had been fraud and corruption in the management of the business of said Book Concern on the part of some employes, and I could not truthfully deny it. I deny that I at any time represented the firm of Brown Brothers & Co, or that said firm were published as defaulters on the books of the Methodist Concern. It does, however, appear from the ledger of the said Methodist Book Concern that said Brown Brothers & Co. are indebted to said Concern in the sum of $20,607 86 for moneys deposited, and that said indebtedness has been charged as uncollectable. I am charged with having stated that the affairs of said Book Concern were in chaos I have made such a statement. I am prepared to prove that the system of book-keeping adopted by said Book Concern is an inferior system, incomplete and unsatisfactory, and that the books kept contain erasures, substitutions and changes highly improper; that the profits of the Concern have been computed upon a fictitious basis, and inventories of property have been increased and diminished arbitrarily to suit the necessities of particular emergencies, that great discrepancies have existed between the printed exhibits furnished to the church and the books of said concern, such printed exhibits in some cases showing a profit when the books show no profit, but loss; that the capital stock of the Concern is not what it is represented to be upon the books of said Concern; that improper entries have been made in said books, whereby great and important transactions have been rendered unintelligible; that many important safeguards are neglected, and as a result a wide margin for frauds and errors exists, and important information is difficult or impossible to be accurately obtained; that said books of account do not show the real condition of affairs of said Concern, nor can a correct statement of assets, or a condition upon the basis of information be furnished by said books and inventories In a single item of leather more than $25,000 worth was purchased during the twenty months, over and above what has been used which never has been accounted for. In the item of paper a system of making purchases was allowed and practiced, whereby a man having no legitimate connection with the Book Concern controlled purchases to his own profit, and to the loss and discredit of the Concern. In the item of wages, proof in more than two hundred instances exist where a less amount was paid to operatives than was or should have been paid them, or than was or should have been drawn for such payments, and less than was returned to the book-keeper as having been paid to such operatives I did object to a manner in which the item of $20,000 was charged to the profit and loss was entered upon the books, but not from the motive alleged. The entry shows that Brown Brothers & Co are indebted to the Book Concern for said amount, which is not true."

A communication from the Bishops was read by Bishop Janes, stating it must be understood that showing responsibility of receiving and entertaining charges against editors and agents, prepared or presented as these have been, cannot act as concurrent authority in any investigation except as to official conduct of our editor or agent.

Rev Mr. Bannister and others then made remarks in which they took the ground that the court should confine itself simply to the question of official misconduct.

Rev Pike said that Mr. Lanahan had been suspended on these charges, and had been summoned to appear before this court to answer them. He is willing to be tried and it would be injustice to eliminate a single item.

Rev. G. W. Malby thought the indictment should be taken up in debate, and anything that referred to the moral character of defendant struck out.

After remarks by Rev. B F. Rawlins and others, a motion to take a recess until three o'clock p.m was put and carried.

At three o'clock the Council re-assembled.

Rev. Mr. Buckley, counsel for the defendant, read a letter from George Taylor, of Flushing, L.I, one of the signers of the signers of the accusations, stating he signed the charges without a correct knowledge of what they contained, and because he had been asked. Mr. Buckley said that if the body of accusers were called together and examined, it would be found that a majority signed like Mr. Taylor, without knowing the purpose and the manner in which their signatures had been obtained, would not bear inspection. Counsel closed by requesting the accusers to be summoned before the court.

Dr. Slicer supported Mr. Buckley's request.

Rev. J. F. Kennedy thought the question of no particular importance, and Rev. Held said that the court had individually made inquiries respecting the accusers and all were in good standing.

Dr. Buckley insisted that knowledge obtained in such a manner was insufficient, and demanded defendant placed face to face with his accusers. A point of order was here raised and sustained by the chair, that after formal presentation has been made and answer submitted, such preliminary arguments are out of order.

The Chair was sustained on appeal, and Buckley's request was entered on the minutes.

Investigation then commenced and E. L. Fancher opened for the prosecution, stating the charge that frauds have been committed in the Book Concern amounting to one million dollars, was never denied by Lanahan, although requested to do so, and the credit of the institution was permitted to suffer. Lanahan was charged by the prosecution with continued misconduct, setting afloat stories of fraud, and saying the Bishop of the Church approved his course.

Mr. Buckley, for the defence, renewed his request to have the accusor present Discussion followed and resulted in the adoption of a resolution that a proper time having passed, it should not be granted.

The court adjourned until nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Body Found.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 13.

A headless body was found in the river last night and has not yet been identified. It probably fell from some vessel and the head severed by the wheel of a steamer.

Baron Evain, an intimate friend of General Changarnier, affirms that Prince Napoleon called on the general at Brussels, and endeavored to induce him to follow a course which would compel the shame and humiliation of France. The general indignantly refused to follow his counsel.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.

Mr. Scott presented a communication from committees representing the Pennsylvania Legislature, Common Council and Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, giving reasons why the celebration of the anniversary of Independence should be held in Philadelphia on the 4th of July, 1876. Referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Thurman submitted a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the Senate whether the account of receipts as to expenditures of the Government for any fiscal year since that ending June, 1866, have been published as required by the Constitution and law, and if not, why not.

Mr. Sherman objected to present consideration of the resolution, when it was laid over.

On motion of Mr. Williams the Senate took up the House resolution for a Joint Ocean Cable Company.

Bayard said the passage of the resolution through the House had been effected, he would not say in an underhand way, but certainly without that honorable degree of deliberation which was essential to the dignity of public business. He was unwilling to consider hastily the resolution, which had been slipped through another branch of Congress. He preferred to wait some legislative expression of the House on the subject.

Wilson remarked that ocean cable enterprises are deserving of encouragement, and therefore wanted definite action on the subject.

Williams was satisfied that the House would not reconsider its action, but after what had been said, he would not press the matter

The Senate then went into executive session, and subsequently adjourned till Monday.

House.

The House proceeded to the consideration of private bills. The House passed the Senate bill authorizing in case of issue of five per cent bonds to the amount of five hundred million dollars, with an amendment that the total amount of issue shall not be increased.

Hooper, from the Committee on Ways and Means, reported back the Senate bill authorizing an increase of five per cent. funding bonds to $500,000,000, interest payable quarterly, with amendments leaving payment of interest quarterly to the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and providing that the amount of funding bonds shall not be increased. Amendment agreed to and bill passed.

Dawes introduced a bill to establish salaries of officers of the Treasury department. Referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

The House then, at 1:40 o'clock, went into Committee of the Whole, Scofield in the chair, and resumed consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. The appropriations for the departments of agriculture and education gave rise to protracted discussion.

On the subject of education, Hoar declared there were more ignorant people to-day in the District of Columbia than in the whole kingdom of Sweden; that out of a population of 800,000 persons in territories which are under the jurisdiction of Congress, there were only 40,000 children educated in schools.

Garfield referred to prisons, showing that ninety-eight per cent. of the criminals had learned no trade and handicraft, and that twenty-four per cent. had not learned to read.

Farnsworth thought that if the argument was worth anything it would justify the establishment by Congress of a department of mechanics rather than a bureau of education.

Cox moved to strike out the whole paragraph relating to a bureau of education, and remarked that a party was coming in power which would regulate that bureau by abolishing it.

Mr. Butler, of Mass, said that although a State could derive benefits from the Bureau of Education, he would vote to sustain the Bureau for the sake of those parts of the Union which had no system of common school education.

Mr Cox's motion to strike out the paragraph was rejected.

Without going further on the bill the Committee rose.

Mr. Buffinton introduced a bill providing for a commission to audit all claims for damages by the steamer Alabama, Shenandoah, Florida and Georgia, with their tenders, and for usuary bonds of the United States for payment thereof. Referred.

Mr. Parker asked leave to offer a resolution directing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire what legislation is necessary to prevent cadet Smith, at West Point Military Academy, from being ill-treated and persecuted on account of color.

Mr. Randall—Let him behave himself.

Mr. Conner objected.

The House, at half past four, adjourned till to morrow.

New York Dry Goods Market.

By Telegraph.] NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

The dry goods market exhibits little signs of animation and is rather too soon to chronicle and besides the trade is not disposed about the establishment of future prices. The indications of prices generally are up higher, spirit of certain makes of colored cottons, which have not fallen in price to correspond with other fabrics or the price of raw material, but much depends on the weather and the prolongation of the wet drought which continues at the East, and the production is out of a serious extent as mills can't run on want of water, lakes, rivers and reservoirs being in many places frozen nearly up This drought has continued through the fall and threatens us through the winter, and if the only active trade should set in the mills could not supply the wants of the trade and the prices of many grades of textiles would advance. Agents and jobbers already awake to this state of things and are operating accordingly.

Notice to Oil Producers and Dealers.—Notice is hereby given that on and after JANUARY 1st, 1871, the following graduated scale of allowances will be adopted and put in force on our respective lines of pipe:

On oils of gravity not exceeding 45°...2 per cent
On oils of gravity above 45° and not above 50°...3 per cent
On oils of gravity exceeding 50°.......3 per cent and one per cent additional for each degree above fifty.

For the information of producers, the undersigned would state the fact has been well established that though at one time the present allowance of two per cent. was sufficient to cover the ordinary losses in the transportation of oil by pipes—at the present time as well as for months past the latter have largely exceeded that allowance. The fact also having been demonstrated that the increased losses directly result from the heightened gravity of oils now transported and that the latter is due to the common use of benzine at wells; as a matter of protection to themselves the various pipe companies find it necessary to adopt the above scale of allowances retaining the present allowance on ordinary oils and increasing as the oil is heightened in gravity.

Defensive Medication.—Investigation is as necessary for the protection of the human body against disease when unhealthy influences are abroad, as iron armor and granite casements are for the protection of ships and fortresses when assailed by shot and shell. Hence, it is desirable when those potent enemies of vitality, damp and cold, pervade the air we breathe, to put the system in the best possible condition to encounter them The stomach is the organ by which every other organ is nourished and sustained, and therefore upon its vigorous and regular action depends in a great measure, the capacity of the system to resist the assaults of the invisible enemies of health and life, by which, at this inclement season, it is surrounded. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an admirable tonic and regulating medicine for all seasons, is never more needed than in winter, when the torpifying influence of a chilly atmosphere affects all the vital functions, and renders the body extremely susceptible. By toning the digestive organs, and the liver, and the bowels with this unequaled vegetable specific a physical condition is attained which seems to be proof against all varieties of temperature, and that it is inimical in the air of winter. Defensive medication is a precaution which should never be neglected when danger is present, and therefore a course of the Bitters at this season is particularly desirable, especially for the feeble and sickly: As a remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness, and bowel complaint, there is nothing comparable to this wholesome restorative.

CHOICE books going cheap at Rice's auction to-night.

THE Rev. J. S. Lytle, of Oil City, will preach in the Methodist Church, on Sabbath morning and evening.

Mr. McJUNKIN, of Venango County, is Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and is also a member of the Committee on Federal Relations.

We have received a copy of a newspaper a weekly journal of Agriculture, published at Philadelphia, called "the National Farmer." Its price is only $1.00 a year.

THE U. & T. R. R.—The track of the Union & Titusville Railroad is now complete, up to the point of intersection with the Oil Creek & Allegheny River Railroad, in this city.

CORRECTION.—In our report of Enterprise and vicinity for December five wells were marked as being drilled at the close of the mouth. This is a mistake, no wells were drilling upon the date mentioned.

THE UNION & TITUSVILLE RAILROAD —Yesterday afternoon Mr. Carlisle, the Cashier of the Union & Titusville Railroad, paid off the "Swede gang," numbering some seventy-five men. The work on the road is progressing favorably, and is being pushed as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

"LET THERE BE LIGHT."—Pennsylvania State Society of Spiritualists. Mrs. Hannah T. Stearns, lecturer, and missionary of this Society, will speak at the Universalist Church, on Sunday evening, January 15th, at 7:30 o'clock. The public are invited. "Prove all things, and hold fast that which is good."

PERSONAL.—Mr. Wm. P. Logan, of Logan & Bros., Philadelphia, one of the largest oil firms in the country, is stopping temporarily at the Crittenden House.

Mr. E. C. Bishop and Mr. J. A. Losee, formerly of this city, are in town on a brief sojourn. The former now resides in Guilford, Connecticut, and the latter is opening a coal mine near Bloomsburgh, Pennsylvania.

MUSICAL.—Mr. J. B. Booth, of the firm of Booth & Sargent, goes to Union on Monday, to take charge as conductor, of the Musical Convention to be assembled there during next week. This Convention is called for the purpose of vocal culture, and it pays Mr. Booth a fitting compliment to give him the preference over others who have heretofore conducted conventions in this section of the country.

A PETROLEUM BOARD OF TRADE.—By special request of the oil dealers upon the upper creek, we are authorized to announce that a meeting will be held this (Saturday) evening, at 7½ o'clock, at which all interested in petroleum matters are invited to be present, to make arrangements towards organizing a Board of Trade, and also decide upon a place of meeting, or rooms where the Board can meet.

THE second annual ball of Rescue Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1 will take place on Tuesday evening next, January 17th. These balls are all well attended and conducted with decorum, and good music and refreshments provided. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of fire hats for the company. Our citizens appreciate the voluntary services and sacrifices of the Fire Department, and are always liberal in making their annual balls yield them a handsome pecuniary return.

THEATRICAL.—Mr. A. S. Pennoyer, business manager of Fox & Denier's Pantomime troupe, is stopping at the Crittenden House. The troupe will perform the famous pantomime of the "Three Blind Mice" at the Parshall Opera House on the 19th, 20th and 21st of the present month. This pantomime had an immense run in the eastern cities, and elsewhere, and will doubtless on this occasion draw crowded houses.

"Wee Willie Winkee
Runs thro' the town,
Up stairs and down stairs,
In his night gown.

Tapping at the window,
Crying at the lock,
Are the babies in their bed?
For it's now ten o'clock."

BATHING.—Attention to the general subject of bathing is fast awakening among us, and there is every reason to believe that ere long all will arouse to the importance of frequent bathing as a physiological, hygienic, moral, social and eminently Christian duty and privilege. Our largest cities, New York, Philadelphia and Boston, have within the past few years turned their attention to the benefits of having pure water for bathing, and bath rooms in the cities above-named are beginning to be regarded as indispensable, and the numerous hydropathic establishments springing up in all parts of the country are perhaps the most efficient instrumentalities of personal cleanliness as a curative process. Our own city is supplied with a good establishment of the kind, furnished with pure spring water, clean and pleasant rooms. Mr Rolph, the proprietor, deserves and should receive a liberal patronage.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—Arthur Magahey and David Foster were yesterday taken before Justice Clark on a charge of assault and battery, preferred against them by John Ridgeway. The case was tried by a jury.

It appears that the defendants, together with four other young men, proceeded from this city, on last Thursday week, and entered the hotel of Mr. John Ridgeway, near Hydetown, where they all took a drink. An altercation took place between one of the party, and a man by the name of Ed. Reynolds, who resides near Townville and who happened to be present on the occasion. The precise origin of the quarrel did not appear in the evidence. One of the party of six struck Reynolds with a tumbler and in the struggle which ensued they both fell over a stove. Mr Ridgeway interfered, when they set upon him, knocking him down, kicking him, striking him with a poker, after he was down, and otherwise maltreating him. Upon recovering himself, Mr. Ridgeway went upstairs after his gun, and attempted to clear the house by firing upon the crowd, but the gun missed fire. He then used the gun as a club, but was speedily disarmed. Meanwhile Mr. Wm. Reynolds, a man seventy years of age and the father of Edward, put his head in at the door, to ascertain the cause of the trouble. The rowdies however put him hors du combat instantly, giving him two black eyes. Mr Ridgeway finally succeeded in clearing the house with a poker. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against Foster, and of not guilty against Magahey, but that he should pay his share of the costs. Justice Clark fined Foster $25, and his share of the costs. The other four parties have not yet been arrested.

MRS. L. H. SEVERANCE, Secretary.

TITUSVILLE, January 12, 1871.

EXCITING RUNAWAY.—Runaway accidents are becoming of such frequent occurrence, that our citizens appear to take them as a matter of course, and are therefore constantly on the qui vive. The sensation experienced on seeing a team wildly rushing through the street is exhilerating, and well calculated to make pedestrians cut capers, although not exactly elegant, at least lively in the fullest acceptation of the term. About noon yesterday a team with wagon attached belonging to G. France, of Tiptop, became frightened at a passing train, near the O. C. & A. R. R. passenger dept, and dashed up Monroe street. The first obstacle they encountered was a wagon, the property of Mr. Sam. Rice, which was instantly converted into kindling wood, sending the horses to which the moment previously they had been attached, flying, one up, the other down the street. The next impediment was a cow quietly standing at Lee & Schofield's watering trough, this animal also the property of the same gentleman, was struck on the flank with such force, that it slid across the street on its haunches for the space of about sixty feet. A third apparently impassable barrier was a strongly braced post eight inches thick, this was snapped like a pipe stem The horses then turned up the new track of the U. & T. R. R. with a speed which bid fair to outstrip the locomotive. Suddenly they halted and hesitated to pass the crossing of the two roads, which could not be accounted for, excepting on the supposition that the litigation between the two roads has not yet been settled. The team and wagon after passing through this ordeal were found to be uninjured. One of Mr. Rice's horses, however, was badly cut about the legs.

A Discovery of a Valuable Quarry.

Editors Morning Herald:

Reading in your columns, the other day, about the importance of finding a good stone quarry near this city, and the futility of all search to discover such, we take occasion to state that we ourselves, in connection with other parties, are the owners of a tract of land on Hammond Run, about one mile and a half from the post office, which contains an extensive and valuable stone quarry, which we have every reason to believe is just the thing for building purposes, and for pavement; and that we intend to open the same in the ensuing spring. Any further information can be obtained by inquiring of us.

S. M. BEAR.
JACOB STRAUSS.

THE WEEKLIES AT HOWE'S.—Every Saturday of January 21st, contains a continuation of George Sand's novel; an editorial on Civil Service Reform; Sights and Sounds at Washington; Sketch of William Cullen Bryan; Dickens' Amateur Theatricals, etc, and illustrations of French and American scenes in great variety and beauty.

Harper's Weekly contains a leader by George William Curtis, on the Republican party in New York, and on Germany and France; chapter third on Travel and Adventure across the Arctic Circle, by Dr. Hayes, etc; picture of Wm. M Tweed; the interior of the Academy of Music; the interior of the Congressional Library, and other home and foreign illustrations.

The Hearth and Home of January 21st, contains the usual miscellaneous articles on prize cattle, ornamental shrubs, grape culture, Mrs. Honey Bee's diary, etc., and novel pictorial embellishments. All for sale at Howe's postoffice news room.

THE Buffalo Express says, "an extraordinary case is on trial before the United States Commissioner in Rochester. It is alleged that the defendant and about thirty others entered into a formal written agreement, before the election, to sell their votes to whoever would pay the most, and that one of the by-laws of the association provided that twenty lashes should be inflicted on any member who voted contrary to the direction of the President." We do not quite understand the merits of the case, but it does look like a very "extraordinary" one.

FOOT BRIDGE CARRIED AWAY.—The recent thaw has swollen the creek considerably. The small bridge which crossed between the refineries in this city, was carried away by the breaking up of the ice yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

TIDIOUTE RAIL ROAD.—In our notice a few days since of the Directors elected for the road, we omitted the name of W. B. Benedict, Esq., of Southwest. He has been, from the first, one of the most earnest and effective friends of this desirable enterprise.

SPECIAL MEETING.—A special meeting of Rescue Hook & Ladder Co. No. 1 will be held at their rooms this (Saturday) evening, and all members are requested to attend. By order of the FOREMAN.

If you cannot answer an opponent's argument, ridicule their Author.

Editors Morning Herald:

This is an advice of an old politician, which you must have just been reading, before you penned your answer to my communication on the pavement question and the reader will not fail to observe, that you use up more than an entire column with your tremendous flashes of wit and pathos in your frantic efforts to extinguish and bury me out of sight forever. This circumstance only proves the importance which you are attaching to the substance of my communication. "When the bird flutters, it is known to have been hit by the marksman," from which proverb the reader may draw his own conclusion. Such a mass of special pleading and attempts at ridicule might well be expected from an embryo lawyer when he is addressing the stereotyped "intelligent jury," but not from a dignified editor, when he treats of grave public questions. How much more simple it would have been to print the proposed amendment and tell our citizens, "here they are—read them yourself and judge of their propriety." This—your proper course if you have only the public welfare at heart, would have enabled the public to judge between us without going into personalities. You choose the latter course which is easily explained. In the attitude of Hamlet, I see you soliloquizing thus: "This Mr. Hershberg, this excited German friend, must be forever shut up, annihilated and made powerless; he has repeatedly crossed the HERALD'S path, opposed some of our darling schemes, and worse than all, has committed the crime of actually succeeding in spoiling some of our pet projects in the past, and we might as well stop him now before he causes us any more trouble," and hence your great effort to accomplish that end. If I had approved those amendments, whose passage you have so much at heart, you would have considered me as wise as yourself and "Mr. Hershberg" would than have been an "intelligent correspondent" instead of an "alarmist and croaker." So far from my predicting an "eternal smash-up" for the City of Titusville, I have steadily and in its darkest days invested in real estate here and encouraged others to do likewise. New York is an immensely prosperous and growing city, but that fact does not prevent its citizens from finding fault with its authorities. The amendment as advocated by you might well be headed "A law to give five Councilmen unlimited and sole power to expend $300,000 for street improvements," and I, for one, am opposed to such a sweeping wholesale enactment, and if my faith in the wisdom and judgment of our city authorities is not sufficiently large to trust them with the carrying out of such an amendment. I am justified by the past history of our city legislation, which is, full of useless and injudicious enactments and appropriations. The practice—which you attempt to ridicule, but which nevertheless prevails in many cities, justifies me in claiming for the property owners to be assessed, the right to decide by a majority vote whether they wish a pavement or not, or else you must presuppose that they do not know their best interests and vote down all pavements. And if the Council concludes to assess the entire expense on the adjoining property owners, I insist that the latter are entitled to be heard, as this pavement matter is by far the largest and costliest project ever brought before them. I should think our Councilmen would be glad to be relieved from such a great responsibility by such a vote, and embrace the opportunity to prove their devotion to the wishes of their constituents. The idea (which I suggested) of having two Boards of Councilmen or city representatives, and which you attempt to ridicule so mercilessly, is not original, with me, for it prevails in all large cities and embodies the same principle, which gives us two Houses of Congress, and two bodies to our Legislature at Harrisburg; and although you may think it very wise to insinuate that if one Council is so bad, two Boards of Councilmen must be worse; you are not thereby questioning my sagacity, but you merely set up your own superior wisdom against the combined conclusions of the framers of our constitution. Your sneering insinuation, that I wish to be one of the proposed Board of Select Councilmen, is pointless and uncalled for, as I have never yet been a candidate for Councilman, although often urged to become one; but have generally preferred to vote for others whom I thought more competent.

In conclusion allow me to add, that although you may continue your editorial abuse it will not prevent me in the future from doing, as I have done in the past, to express my honest convictions in matters of public interest, particularly as I have the satisfaction of knowing that a large and influential class of our citizens approve my course, thanking me for my zeal and have taken proper steps to prevent the questionable amendments in their present shape from passing through our Legislature.

H. L. HERSHBERG.

REMARKS.

We attempted yesterday to show—

First. That there was a great need, and a general desire, for paved streets in this city, especially on the leading business thoroughfares, Spring and Franklin streets.

Second. That in the judgment of the Common Council, the cost of such street pavement should be borne by the owners of the property abutting on such street so paved.

Third. That to do this, to levy such special tax, and to provide funds to meet such outlay, the Legislature had to be invoked for the requisite authority.

Fourth. That the Council were the proper and authorized body to respond to this popular demand, to determine that those persons who reaped the benefits should bear the burden, to propose suitable amendments, and to present and urge their adoption by the Legislature.

Fifth. That to take from the Council and give to the property holders the privilege of deciding what kind of pavement should be adopted, involved several absurdities and difficulties, as a little reflection would show—all this and much more.

But all without working the slightest signs of conversion or contrition in the mind of Mr. Hershberg. In a good cause such tenacity of adherence to conviction would be heroic, and even sublime, but in a bad and selfish one, in such a cause as he is now advocating, it is, and our friend will pardon the expression, simply asinine obstinacy on his part. Our correspondent first wilfully closes his eyes, and then blames us because he cannot see. This is very unreasonable! The fact is that Mr. Hershberg is simply a monomaniac on the subject of taxation, and nearly beside himself with the desire and determination to shove off taxes from his own shoulders upon those of his neighbors. For this is all it amounts to. Owning one of the best four corners in the heart of the city, and we sincerely rejoice at his prosperity, he is seized with the idea that every other city lot large and small, should be taxed to pave the street that abuts on his premises. This is what, unconsciously to himself, and cherishing the amusing delusion that somehow he is pleading the cause of down-trodden tax payers; this is what clouds the, usually fair judgment, and confuses the moral perceptions of our contributor, so that, in a certain sense, a narrow and limited sense, he is not a responsible being, and hence the above effusion, in which he strikes so wildly and gabbles so incoherently. Take him on any other subject, war or politics, and we know his mind is perfectly logical and consecutive in its processes.

The malady is simply one of locality. Let Mr. H. sell out to-day; let him buy a shop, store, or house on any other than those two avenues which pass his block and intersect at his corner; and presto change! Mr. Hershberg will no longer storm and rave at "the powers that be."

What Mr. Hershberg proposes, is to strip the Common Council of their Charter powers, how? Either his suggestions are idle vaperings, or seditious suggestions of popular violence. We say nothing in regard to the imputations cast upon the Council.

The gentleman seems to forget that "the Legislative powers of the city are vested in one body to be called a Common Council" by section three of their charter. He forgets that by section eleven of that instrument members are sworn to discharge their duties with fidelity, and now he proposes that the citizens, few or many, shall proceed to take the helm, and relieve the Council of any further cognizance or concern with street sewers or street pavements. And why not take the police, the fire department, the appointment of officers, the collection of taxes, and all else into their special charge and keeping? What is to be the number of this self-constituted body—this Committee of Public Safety?—for these be revolutionary times, and we must have revolutionary names. Dispensing with their certificates of election, as representative men, may we inquire if they are to be sworn and affirmed in manner and form? Are they to usurp the Council Chamber, and drive forth with paving stones those who buy paving stones corruptly? We fancy we see our doughty friend striding into the Council room, as Cromwell in the Parliament house, and dissolving it with his Teutonic fiat. We fancy we see the Nicholson pave or the Rowan rock, or the Manhattan model, or the Bungtown boulder, passing from hand to hand of the Hershberg phalanx, subjected to all the tests of touch, taste and smell of the Hershberg organs, and tested by all the chemistry and arithmetic of the Hershberg resources, which are known to be infinite, whereas the Council's are only finite. For want of space and time, we are compelled to bring these remarks to an abrupt close, leaving other topics suggested by Mr. H's communication for future treatment, should "Monsieur Tonson come again."

The Court.

(From the Meadville Republican.)

The Court of Quarter Sessions closed on Tuesday, and the Court of Common Pleas commenced.

The docket as will be seen by a perusal of the proceedings, was heavily charged with crimes, ranging from a murder to petty larceny. There was a very large number of indictments against persons for selling liquor without a license, selling on Sunday, and selling to minors, which, when proven to the satisfaction of the Court and jury, had meted out to them the penalty of the law, laid down for such cases. This should be a warning to such persons that the laws are not to be violated with impunity.

Titusville, or the oil region, as usual, furnished a very large proportion of the cases which came up term time for trial.

The reputation which that portion of our county has among the outside barbarians as the El Dorado; the place where men of evil habits can make or steal money easily, has necessarily brought a large number of the evil disposed there, who continue their nefarious practices until the heavy hand of the law is laid upon them, and they are taught that "The way of the transgressor is hard."

Wednesday, the court was confined exclusively to the civil business, and note will be made of such cases as may be of interest to the public.

George Smith, for selling liquor without a license, was allowed to go free upon payment of costs.

O. A. Licknor, E. L. Lichfield and John Connor, charged with obstructing the highway, having proved to the satisfaction of the court that it was removed, were discharged upon payment of costs.

John Ketchum's recognizance was forfeited, and the law will now try to catch him.

E Pentz is to make the county richer, by paying a fine of $50 and the costs of prosecution, for selling liquor without license so to do.

Chas. Robinson was permitted to pay the costs of prosecution and go free, upon the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

J. H. Lewis, for assault and battery, pays the costs of prosecution, and is discharged.

Matthew Luce, on whom was resting the charge of fornication and bastardy, was relieved upon payment of costs.

The charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, preferred against John Bentz, was continued at the instance of the defendant, upon showing that several important witnesses were absent, he to pay the costs.

J D Lewis, for resisting officers in the execution of their duty, plead guilty and sentence was suspended.

Abraham Shuster, charged with trying to have more wives than the law thinks a man is able to keep, had it continued over till the next term of court, when it will be seen if he is a believer in the theory of Brigham Young.

For Charles Michels, who was indicted for obtaining goods under false pretenses, the court entered a nolle prosequi, upon his paying the costs.

Two of the gentlemen who went with our worthy Sheriff to take up their abode in Allegheny yesterday were named respectively Marvin Rice and Rufus A. Allen; sent to the Western Penitentiary, the first for the term of one and a half years, and the second for two and a half years. Upon the expiration of said term they were to undergo a further term of imprisonment of one month each, upon another charge of like nature.

Fred. Chain had leave to pay the costs of prosecution in his case of felonious assault, and Virgil Hills and Oscar White, tried for robbery, were found not guilty.

The bill charging Addison Day with the crime of perjury was ignored, and the prosecutor was ordered to pay the costs incurred in the prosecution.

In another case of a similar nature, brought against J. W. Briant, Addison Day pays the costs.

John M. Gilmore, for assault and battery with intent to commit a rape, was found not guilty but to pay the costs.

The Grand Jury ignored the bill against Hugh M. Lenathan, for assault and battery, and ordered Sarah Crumb to pay the costs.

Twenty years, thirty years, and forty years ago, two of the most powerful political papers in this country were the Albany Journal and the Albany Argus. The former was the Whig organ, edited by Thurlow Weed, and the other, the Democratic organ, edited by Edwin Croswell. Those were the times of fierce political rivalries and animosities, and these two great political leaders fought each other like wild beasts fought at Ephesus. Both of them are now old men, and both of them have for many years ceased to be editors. It is pleasing to hear that these bitter rivals of former times now entertain the warmest friendship for each other, and that one of them has for some time been able to assist the other in a way which gives the best proof how completely the editorial rancor of other years has disappeared.

BISCUIT.—Take one quart of flour, one measure of Banner Baking Powder, and one teaspoonful of salt; mix thoroughly and sift; then rub in one tablespoonful cold shortening, and mix in with a spoon two-thirds of a pint of cold sweet milk, or water, (milk is the best;) this makes a dough too soft to be rolled; turn it out on your tray lid, well floured; press with your hand to the desired thickness, cut in shapes, and bake at once in a very quick oven. When mixed with milk, you may leave out the shortening, if you prefer not to use it. If your oven is at the proper heat, ten minutes will suffice to bake them.

OPENING.—W. B. Todd will open a new billiard parlor in the Roberts block, opposite the American Hotel, this evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

CARD OF THANKS.—My heartfelt thanks are due the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company of New York, who through Mr. Strahl, their agent of this place, paid me to-day the amount of my late husband's Life Insurance, $2,000, he having been insured on the third of October, and died on the Nineteenth of the same month. Such promptness in a Company deserves notice, and it is my intention to make application immediately for a policy on my own life.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Titusville Morning Herald

A Good Old Fashioned Ghost Story.

C. Abbey, in Cheshire, is the ancestral seat of the C. family, says a writer in a late number of All the Year Round. The old part of this fine old mansion has been made into bedrooms and offices, not being in keeping with the splendor of modern requirements. Thus, what used to be called the "coved saloon" was first degraded into a nursery, and is now used as a bedroom. When the late Lord C. grew old, this room, in which he had played as a child, was occupied by his niece, Miss P., who before her marriage resided in the house. Lady C.'s dressing room was only divided from the "coved saloon" by a short corridor.

One evening Miss P. was alone dressing for a very late dinner, and as she arose from her toilet glass to get some article of dress, she saw standing near her bed—a little iron one, placed out in the room away from the wall—the figure of a child dressed in a very quaint frock, with an odd little ruff around the neck For some moments Miss P. stood and stared, wondering how this strange little creature could have entered her room. As she stood looking at it the child began to run round and round the bed in a will distressed way, with a look of suffering in its little face.

Miss P., still more and more surprised, walked to the bed and stretched out her hand, when the child suddenly vanished, how or where she did not see, but apparently into the floor. She went at once to Lady C.'s room and inquired of her to whom the little girl could belong she had just seen in her room, expressing her belief that it was supernatural, and describing her odd dress and troubled face.

The ladies went down to dinner, for many guests were staying in the house. Lady C. thought and thought over this strange appearance. At last she remembered that Lord C. had told her that one of his earliest recollections was the grief he felt at the sudden death of a little sister of whom he was very fond, fourteen years old. The two children had been playing together in the nursery at the same "coved saloon," running round and round the bed—over night. In the morning when he awoke he was told she had died in the night, and he was taken by one of the nursery-maids to see her laid out on her little bed in the "coved saloon." The sheet placed over her was removed to show him her face. The horror he had felt at the first sight of death made so vivid an impression on him, that in extreme old age he still recalled it. The dress and face of the child, as described by Miss P. agreed precisely with his remembrance of his sister. Both Lady C. and Miss P. related this to the writer.
